Suicide By Tigers from Malmö, Sweden defines hard rock as heavy guitar riffs, strong melodies and long guitar solos. We are many who share their love for the late sixties and early seventies rock, and Suicide By Tigers takes us further down that road with a modern twist.

Nils, Peter, Johan and Petter formed their friendship in the club scene of Malmö back in the 90's. They played in different bands, listened to each other and got inspired. Their influences were the same – classic rock giants as Deep Purple Thin Lizzy and Jimi Hendrix to mention a few. During the following years they continued to hang out but professionally they headed in different directions.

One late summer a few years ago Nils decided to finish a bunch of songs he'd been working on for a while. He called his long time friend and great guitarist Petter Rudnert to the studio. Suicide By Tigers was born. Today the band is a complete four-wheel drive, resting safely on the solid rhythm section in Peter Broch (bass) and Johan Helgesson (drums).

On September 2nd Suicide by Tigers' self-titled debut album will be the released on vinyl and CD by Smilodon Records, distributed by Sound Pollution.

The album was recorded by awarded producer Berno Paulsson (The Haunted, Amon Amarth, Spiritual Beggars). Paulsson's musicality and solid knowledge as a producer made him the perfect match for Suicide By Tigers.

The first single "Vicious Malicious" was digitally released earlier this year along with a video directed by Björn Wahlström.

Why Suicide by Tigers? You ask. Well the phrase that is derived out of thoughts and questions that awakes from looking into the ingenuity and madness that is aspects of human behaviour.
